Safety Accessories Preventing cross-contamination in the foodservice industry is one of the many processes that restaurants should address.

There are many chances to contaminate food during the prep process, and it could hurt a restaurant to have even one customer get sick. Responsible restaurants do what they can to prevent cross-contamination, including providing personal protective equipment like gloves and facemasks. Moving forward, customers will be more aware of the methods that companies use to prevent cross-contamination. Get ahead of these expectations by adopting new eco-friendly personal protective equipment (PPE) for all of your staff members. PacknWood has eco-friendly PPE that you can use to protect staff members, customers, and the environment.

PacknWood is making several types of protective face masks available for pre-sale. Our masks are made to offer different types and levels of protection. Plus, they can be used together or separately for a more comprehensive safety and cross-contamination prevention program.

Keeping staff members and customers safe from crosscontamination is one of our leading priorities. PacknWood's eco-friendly healthcare supplies are designed to minimize the chance of cross-contamination and help you keep your loved ones safe. Call PacknWood at (201) 604-3840 for assistance placing an order for our limited time offers, including eco-friendly healthcare supplies.
